

My name is Seth Leitman and I had always been known in "green circles" as THAT GREEN LIVING GUY. I am that guy that answers questions "people are afraid to ask" about Going Green. I guess that's why they call me The Green Living Guy.

Live Green Connecticut is Where Green Meets Mainstream and The Green Living Guy

Friday, September 16, 2011 at 4:22PM

Scot Weicker and Daphne Dixon, co-founders of Live Green Connecticut! announce their 2011 schedule of events, which includes over a dozen educational discussions, ranging from saving money by "going green" to learning how to get a "green" job. Discussions will take place in the Dolce Coffeehouse throughout both days of the festival. A complete list of presenters may be viewed at www.livegreenct.com

Featured speakers include the following:

Donna Sweidan, career coach, speaker and founder of Careerfolk, LLC, a full service career management company, specializing in taking people from soul search to job search, will lead the discussion on: Five Steps to Making a Green Career Change

Seth Leitman, author and editor of several "green" books with McGraw-Hill and has always been known in "green circles" as That Green Living Guy, will answers questions "people are afraid to ask" about "Going Green", including all of your green energy and electric car questions.

Barbara Donahue, of Sustainable Solutions CT will present, It Really Works: Learn How I Saved Money by Greening My Home

Justin Haaheim, 350.org: Moving Planet, will talk about this national event going on September 24th, and how to join the local event in New Haven.

Eric Gribin will talk about the growing job opportunities in sustainable design and construction, energy efficiency and renewable energy. Come learn how Connecticut's community colleges can prepare and help place you in this green economy.
